BLOUINARTINFO

Mai-Thu Perret's 'Zone' at the Simon Lee Gallery, London

BY AMANDA AVERY | DECEMBER 05, 2016

Mai-Thu Perret's "Again This Thousand-Year-Old Eggplant Root," 2016. Glazed ceramic, 28 3/8x 28 3/8x 2 1/8 inches (Courtesy: Simon Lee Gallery)

An exhibition of work by Mai-Thu Perret titled "Zone" is on display at the Simon Lee Gallery in London through February 4, 2017.

In her first solo show in the English capital, the Swiss artist presents a set of interdisciplinary works that blend the idioms of feminism, theater, religion, environment, politics and art history to create another episode in the fictional narrative she calls "The Crystal Frontier." In this way, Perret, a recipient of the Zurich Art Prize and le Prix Culturel Manor, critiques social aspects connected to capitalism and the patriarchy, drawn from the experimental writing of Monique Wittig.

"Mai-Thu Perret: Zone" is on show at the Simon Lee Gallery, 12 Berkeley Street, Mayfair, London W1J 8DT.